

Site for new college

Northcote Leader 15th July 1970

These two single-story houses in Cunningham St., (above) would have to be demolished if a new cultural college is to be built by the Aborigines Advancement League.

The league plans to build a $1 million cultural college and sports centre in Cunningham St.

Building of the college is expected to begin in a year.

The Director of the League, Mr Bruce McGuinness, said he would approach Northcote Council about taking over the roadway between Ross St. and the railway line.

He said the roadway was useless to the council and was in a terrible condition.

Mr McGuinness said the league could grass the roadway and make it look more attractive.
