

Debt repaid

KELVIN HARRISON, 26, of Northcote, paid a debt yesterday when he became the first Aboriginal blood donor at Victorian Red Cross headquarters.

Kelvin decided to become a blood donor two years ago after his own life was saved by a transfusion. Aide Trish Richards is shown dressing his arm after the blood had been taken.