The onus was on Lin

Some people have been expressing concern over the fire risk that the koories' camp could create but last week one of the least expected things happened.

On days of high fire danger Belgrave Fire Brigade have a man nearby to turn straight away should a fire start. Up to the forest camp they went.

Their regular man had to leave the town for a few hours and they had problems finding someone to take his place until the penny dropped. Camp leader, Lin Onus, spent most of the afternoon at the fire station keeping an eye on other people's fire risks!
