

Lupgna Giari (left), a leader of the Gurindji strike and occupation of Vestey's Wave Hill station land, arriving in Sydney with Dexter Daniels to campaign for Gurindji land rights. The Gurindjis' five-year-old battle for land rights shows the strength of independent black action. Solidarity from white workers has left much to be desired. Plans are under way for renewed militancy in support of the Gurindjis.